ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a network or internet-based system and method for collaboratively creating, developing, and integrating content and information for eLearning and knowledge management.